ERIC D. GREEN

SELECTED MASS TORT EXPERIENCE

Professor Green's work in mediating mass tort litigation has been innovative and extensive. Over more than thirty years he has served as the mediator or Special Master for asbestos litigation in several courts, including Ohio, Connecticut and Massachusetts, as the court-appointed Guardian Ad Litem for the future claimants in major federal class-action asbestos litigation and as the bankruptcy court-appointed Legal Representative for hundreds of thousands of unknown future claimants in five asbestos trusts. Professor Green has also served as the futures representative in non-asbestos Chapter 11 bankruptcy cases, including the contamination of residential drinking water by certain industrial toxic chemicals.

Professor Green has also mediated and arbitrated numerous cases involving asbestos personal injury claims, asbestos property damage claims, asbestos insurance coverage claims, asbestos reinsurance, and asbestos indemnification claims as well as numerous other mass tort cases involving current and future claims for exposure to PCB's, pharmaceuticals, chemicals, fumes, and medical devices. These include:

- The Metabolife ephedra cases involving hundreds of victims and multiple defendants and insurers, some in bankruptcy;
- the Monsanto/Solutia PCB cases in Alabama involving thousands of victims;
- thousands of childhood and adult cancer cases in Toms River, New Jersey;
- the PPA MDL Litigation cases;
- various national mass surgical and medical products product liability cases in state, federal, and bankruptcy proceedings;
- multiple "unnecessary surgery" hospital cases, including the Tennant Health heart surgeries, the Indiana sinus surgery cases and other heart medical device cases in Maryland;
- drinking water and air contamination cases involving various chemicals;
- MDL pharmaceutical pricing claims in the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts involving dozens of plaintiffs and dozens of defendants.
